GUAM TERRITORIAL BAND BIOGRAPHY

In 1976, the Governor's Youth Band was organized as a marching band to perform for the inauguration of President Jimmy Carter in 1977. Since then, the band has been an active part of musical life on Guam providing a service to the community. The Guam Territorial Band (GTB), as it is now known, is the Official Band of Guam. The band continues its service to the people of Guam by performing at graduations, military events, national holiday ceremonies, official visits, village fiestas, local government functions, and at numerous venues at home and abroad. GTB performs an anniversary concert in November and several public concerts during the summer and Christmas seasons - many of them free and open to the public.

The band also serves as an educational outreach for those who desire more than what their school band programs provide. The Guam Honor Band Program focuses on enhancing band experiences for middle school and high school students seeking performance opportunities of more challenging works outside of their normal school band. Three divisions with different levels of experience were formed to assist in choosing appropriate repertoire. The Guam Honor Band has also represented Guam abroad and has garnered additional awards for the island at the Pacific Basin Music Festival in Honolulu, Hawaii.

For more serious musicians, the Guam Band Academy offers in depth training in music theory, marching band, solo performance, and small ensemble performance, to name a few. Membership in the academy is open to all aged 30 and under, with the Chief Band Master as Head of Instruction. Its objective is to train and develop musicians who seek musician leadership or careers in music.

Generally speaking, the membership of the band spans a vast age range from early adolescence through senior citizens. Each fall, an audition and annual assessment is held to maintain the high quality of musicianship for which the Guam Territorial Band is renowned. New members are welcome at anytime through the year, and all are asked to join the regional band in which their village is serviced.

GTB prides itself on being a family. It has become a second home to many of its youth members through the years and has served as an anchor for those who experience the trials of teenage and college life. Many of youth continue on to become island and national leaders, and we are proud of being part of their development.
